

SAMAROLI APPRENTICE

Glen Scotia | Single Malt Whisky | 2022 Release

Samaroli Apprentice is composed of Glen Scotia whiskies aged in Bourbon Hogsheads, bottled at 43%. The Glen Scotia distillery is one of the smallest in Scotland and one of the only three active in Campbeltown. The historic building dating back to the 1830s, still maintains the original mash tun, stillroom and dunnage warehouse.

Tasting notes

Taste

A grain overture with garden spices, burnt rosemary, thyme and mint. Lively and unpredictable, needing time to settle down so that the olfactive presentiments may find concreteness on savouring.

About Independent Bottler Samaroli: Samaroli is probably Italy's most renowned independent bottler, considered a visionary by most. Impeccable taste and an eye for aesthetics have given numerous of his bottlings a worthy place in the pantheon of whisky and rum giants. Today the production is under Antonio Bleve's direction, who has collaborated with Samaroli for many years and shares the passion and philosophy of the house. Antonio Bleve continues his quest for exceptional casks, relying on the brand's historical relationships and new interactions, making their latest bottlings increasingly in demand.
